THE CONVENTION.

FURTHER PROCEEDINGS OF ASSEMBLED REPUBLICANS.

THE RESULT OF FIRST THREE BALLOTS CAST.

Sherman in the Lead When They Take a Recess—The Several Nominating Speeches Made at the Afternoon Session, Thursday—How the United Press Works—Illustrations of Speakers.

THURSDAY'S AFTERNOON SESSION.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The convention resumed business promptly at 3:15 o'clock, and the oratorical display was resumed. The audience, on the floor and in the galleries, was alert to hear and very ready to applaud any utterance which pleased them, or to show distaste for any fault of delivery or clumsiness of presentation of any sentiment. The crowd was hot, and ready to make it hot for any unfortunate speaker who gave the chance, but good-natured withal; as everybody was satisfied that the nominations were being proceeded with.

William B. Allison was then placed in nomination by W. P. Hepburn, of Iowa, who began by making an appeal for harmony. The candidate must be of spotless character, a man of integrity, versed in public business—a man of affairs. William B. Allison was the candidate of Iowa, a state that has never wavered from true Republicanism. Allison was called to the public service in 1861, a time of trial. He has helped to write every page of legislative history for twenty-five years. In war he aided the commander-in-chief, in peace he insisted in payment of all just claims to the soldiers. He helped the protective legislation of the era, and has always stood by that policy. He stands on the line of tariff defense in the northwest. His is placed in generous rivalry with other illustrious names. He is conservative, sagacious, versed in affairs and beyond calumny. All Republicans can unite on him. Were he to direct the administration he would always be found true to his country and the principles of his party, wise in determining the better course, courageous in pursuing it, honest in the administration of public affairs, calm, deliberate, conservative, kind and honest, giving the country an administration that would meet the demands and secure the benediction of a contented people.

Robert E. Fraser, of Detroit, then placed in nomination Gen. R. A. Alger. He began his speech by saying:

"Heretofore, during all the battles that you have fought, during all the great contests in which you have been engaged, Michigan has been modest in her demands of the Republican party, but when we find this party out of power, when we find the Democratic party controlling this nation, we don't stop to argue by what means or methods that party got there, but we come here to provide for you the ways and means of turning that party out of power. As long as everything was going along smoothly with the Republican party, Michigan had nothing to ask; but now, when you need her, we come here and offer you a man to lead her to victory in this campaign."

"The business men of this nation have never had a candidate. I present to you a business man. This is to be a business man's campaign. If we are to fight this battle on the line of the protective tariff, let the lawyers look up the fees after the battle, but let the business men do the fighting now. I present to you a business man who has not his superior in all this free country of ours. [Cries of 'good!'] When he returned from the war, poor, with only a dollar, having entered the service of his country at twenty-four, at twenty-eight he was a brigadier general in the armies of the United States, made so by gallant and brave conduct on the field of battle, on the recommendation of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan. [Cheers.]

"This man has exhibited great skill in the selection of men, as he does to-day in his business interest. It was at his request that the governor gave to Philip H. Sheridan his commission, and he was the first bearer of this commission; and it was because of his general skill and ability that it was determined then that this man should be given that commission, and is to-day honored as one of the greatest soldiers of the world."

"He has acquired not a dollar by any improper or objectionable means; but by simply following the pure business idea that had taken possession of the man he gradually accumulated a large amount of property. But his property is always in motion, coming in and going out, and every old soldier gets it. 'The state of Michigan knows it. The poor people of our state know it, and, wherever a man needs it, the hand of Gen. Alger is open always to assist him. This man of business, I say, has the confidence of the business people of this country. He has no superior, and this being a business man's campaign and they being preferred to fight the battle, why should not a business man be nominated?"

"Gentlemen, backed by the entire delegation from the state of Michigan, backed by every Republican in the state of Michigan, by this authority I nominate for this convention, Russell A. Alger as a candidate for president of the United States. [Loud and prolonged cheering.]

Senator Hiscok, of New York, opened in eloquent style his speech nominating Chauncey Depew, the "poor man's friend." He related the history of his candidate as a railroad manager who had never wrecked a railroad. Depew was a delegate, not a smile on his features, while his praises were being said. New York cheered the conclusion of Hiscok's speech, which had become tiresome.

Delegate Hartley, of Minnesota, seconded the nomination, promising his state for Depew.

Pennsylvania had two orators. Gen. Hastings offered John Sherman's name in a forcible speech, as follows:

"MR. PRESIDENT, AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION.—Pennsylvania is opposed to Grover Cleveland and to the continuance of his administration. Her electoral vote will be cast for the nominee of this convention. Pennsylvania has never faltered in her devotion to Republican principles, and will not falter now. Her metropolis was the cradle of American liberty, and the Republican party's birth and baptism were both on Pennsylvania soil. With her the fundamental and elementary principles of Republicanism have always been held sacred as the chapter of her liberties, and the memory of her dead soldiers and her majorities give proof—majorities unequalled in the sisterhood of states—cast for Lincoln, for Grant, for Hayes, for Garfield and for her beloved son, James G. Blaine."

"Pennsylvania comes to this convention and with great unanimity asks you to nominate a standard bearer who will represent the principles, traditions and hopes and asphations of the Republican party; a man whose name will stand for its integrity, its doctrines and its matchless history; a man who will execute the laws and will vindicate the honor of the nation; whose very personality will be a sword in the hands of honest freemen wherewith to drive from place and power the party which holds the reins of the National government by fortuitous circumstance and against the true interests and the honest desire of a majority of the nation's sovereigns."

"He whom I shall nominate to you needs no introduction. His career, his character, his manhood, and his illustrious achievements are part of the nation's history. They whom I represent and who ask his nomination at your hands, point you to his grand career, beginning with those patriots who rocked the cradle of Republicanism, to the man who has been in the fore front of every battle for his party, who has been its counselor, its champion, its strong right arm, whose name is a tower of strength, and who was never defeated for any office for which he was nominated."

"Those who believe that he who has rendered the most and the best public service is entitled to consideration, who believe that experience in statecraft is a prerequisite to high public preferment; that it is not a disqualification to have actively and honorably participated in a generation of thrilling and stupendous events—events more vital to humanity and liberty than were crowded into an equal period of the world's history; who have seen the folly of placing an unexperienced and mediocrity in high places. These have made for him their choice. Freedmen waiting for the welcome day when there will be no longer a solid south; the true soldiers of both sides who bravely and loyally accepted the results of the war, they who are waiting for the dawn of that new day when the right of suffrage dare not be denied to any man, white or black; when honest elections will triumph over intimidation and tissue ballots, and a purified franchise shall preserve the jewel of liberty in the household of its friends; they who are still waiting until the true gospel of protection to man and the fruits of his toil shall be preached in myriads of schoolhouses south of that political equator called 'Mason and Dixon's Line'; they who believe with him that honest and faithful immigration should be welcomed, but that impossible barriers should be erected on the Pacific coast against the influx of the heathen hordes of Mongolian barbarity—all these have found in him their consistent friend and steadfast champion."

"That grand army of men who followed Grant and Sherman and Sheridan! The widows and orphans of their comrades, and thousands who believe a soldier's honorable discharge is no disqualification in civil life, and thousands more who love their country and those who serve it, will welcome him as their choice."

"He was a soldier's friend in war, and has been their constant friend in peace. He stood by the side of Lincoln and the army from the first days of Sumter until another Sherman marched from Atlanta to the sea, and peace came on golden wings. A people who gave a million soldiers to the republic found in time a man to sustain them and the country's credit. Our financial policy was as victorious as our armies. The statesmanship of resumption, his crowning success, unequalled in any time or country, has placed his name upon the lips of multitudes throughout the country."

"Do you want his record? Read the history and statutes of the country for the last thirty years; a broken union restored and made strong; a race of men emancipated; a system of free public schools extended to every state; a bonded debt, the price of a nation's life, reduced from two billions, two hundred millions to less than half; the public credit made firm as the everlasting hills; a system of protection to American industries imbedded in legislation, and consistently supported as a wise public policy. These are a few of the great achievements of the Republican party; and while every other candidate before this convention has contributed a full share of honorable, patriotic and meritorious service, no man has become, of the whole splendid record, more an inseparable part than he whom I shall name."

"My countrymen, the central issue of this campaign is an American policy for the whole American people, at home and abroad. What though our system of currency be the best in the world? It is the achievement of Republicanism. Every dollar of it bears the stamp of Republican approval. What though Republican honesty and foresight swell the Federal treasury with the wherewith to liquidate a nation's debt? No question of surplus should arise until that debt be paid. But it is of supreme moment that toiling millions shall not by cant or sentimental fallacy be made the victims of that false system of political economy which tends to beggary. We welcome the issue, protection or free trade? Make him our standard bearer, and every principle for which the party has battled, every triumph which it has achieved, will be represented in our leader."

"Nominate him, and there will be no sophistry, no fallacy so plausible as to divert the intelligence and common sense of people from the vital issue."

"Nominate him, and a sense of National security, of safety, and of confidence in the future will crystallize into triumphant victory."

"I nominate the patriot, the statesman, the honest man, John Sherman." [Great applause.]

Governor Foraker seconded Sherman's nomination. He spoke with vigor, although his voice was rather hoarse. In closing his speech, the governor said: "Nominate not John Sherman of Ohio, but of the United States, who was unpopular only in England because of their desire for free trade."

When the young governor left the rostrum there was such an outburst as was equalled only once before—on mention of Blaine's name. Foraker, rather than Sherman seemed to be the beneficiary of their enthusiasm. Flags were waved and the banners of the delegates flung high in air. Advanced above the stage was the floral design, draped with a large American flag: "No Rebel Flags Surrendered While I Am Governor." From every side small American flags appeared as if by magic.

Charles Amory Smith on presenting the name of Edwin H. Fittler, mayor of Philadelphia, alluded to Pennsylvania as the greatest Republican commonwealth, and Fittler as foremost among eminent business representatives who have been the architects of Republican greatness. Pennsylvania had no interest not shared by every other section. In the days that tried men's souls Fittler was a master spirit of the patriotism that upheld the country's flag. In service to his party he has always been at the front; and when a new system of government was ordained for Philadelphia he was chosen for mayor by all the Republican elements, and elected.

Since the Democratic party had taken a president from a mayor's chair, the Republican party might well meet, and beat that little mayor with a truly big one. Fittler was the greatest manufacturer in his line in the world; known and respected everywhere in business circles; an employer who never had differences with his employees; a Republican who never faltered in sunshine or in storm; a leader who is equally available as a candidate and sure as a president.

Governor Rusk, of Wisconsin, who has the advantage of having been born in Ohio, and made his way upward from a stage driver, was the last man proposed as a candidate for president. His name was presented by Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin. His speech was a good one and to the point.

The nomination was not seconded, and after finishing the roll call of states, the convention adjourned until 11 o'clock Friday.

FRIDAY'S SESSION.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Unusually bright and early the members of the various delegations were up and doing, and at 7 o'clock, when the representative of the United Press started on his round of the headquarters, caucuses were already in progress in the Wisconsin, Maine, Ohio and other rooms and the doors were guarded by broad-shouldered sentinels.

Around in the corridors and rotundas the throng was as dense as ever and the fact that a good many thousands of shouters had returned to their homes on the night trains seemed to make no appreciable difference. The air was filled with rumors of combinations and dickering, plots and counterplots.

The Blaine undercurrent seemed to be as strong as ever, and the fact that Walker Blaine was cloaked with the Maine delegation until a late hour last night and again early this morning, was generally commented upon as having more than ordinary significance.

There was a confident feeling in the Sherman camp and the Greshams were also in a similar mood as a result of the rallying of the United Labor forces under their banner.

Of course, the enthusiastic contingents of the other candidates were claiming everything in sight, but it was noticeable that the managers of the booms had adopted at last a conservative policy and were unwilling to go very far in the direction of prediction.

There was little delay on the part of the delegation in getting to work, the neighborhood of the auditorium this morning, by 9:30, fully one-half of them were in their seats, and the upper part of the building filled up at an amazing rate.

Chairman Estee was in his seat fifteen minutes before the hour of assembling, and Harry Smith, the journal clerk of the National house of representatives, who in consequence of his knowledge of parliamentary law has been acting as adviser to the chair, came in a few minutes later. With him was Carson Lake, who has kept himself on the left of the chair since Wednesday, and looked to it that the Blaine element got all the recognition that it wanted.

Many eyes were directed to the ladies' box when Miss Sherman was escorted to a seat where she could command a full view of the proceedings, and had not the handsome features of Mrs. Logan been so obscured by a heavy widow's veil of crepe that very few guessed her identity, she would undoubtedly have received as hearty a recognition as was accorded the memory of her gallant husband whenever he is referred to by the speakers.

There was one alternate in the seat of Chauncey Depew, and Governor Foraker started here and there over the floor, stopping to confer for a moment with the chairman of different delegations.

At 11:00 when Chairman Estee brought his gavel down upon the desk and asked the convention to come to order not a score of delegates or alternates out of the 1,600 or more were out of their seats and from the floor to the roof the immense structure was a sea of heads and waving fans.

The attendance was larger than at any previous session, and Col. Ingersoll, who has missed few such gatherings for a score of years, remarked, as he surveyed the scene from the stage that it was a sight that would fasten itself upon his memory to his dying day. It took a good many poundings of the gavel to still the roar of conversation and bring about a semblance of order, but when it had at last been accomplished, yrases way offered by Rev. W. H. Wooster, of Chicago Congregational church.

With solemn and deliberate manner, Mr. Wooster stepped to the right of the chairman's enclosure and besought the blessing of heaven upon the assembly, but there was so much noise he could not be heard. At 11:23 Mr. Wooster made a second attempt to invoke the blessing which circumstances compelled him to defer.

At the conclusion of the prayer the roll call was ordered.

At 11:35 the roll call began and was as follows:

- Alabama—Sherman 12, Alger 6, Depew 1, Harrison 1.
- Arkansas—Ingalls 10, Harrison 1, Gresham 1, Sherman 2.
- California is called. Haymond announces "California casts her 16 votes for James G. Blaine." There is a roar of applause. It commences in the galleries back of the stage and goes like a flood over the hall all through the mass of human beings to the roof. Ladies wave flags, white plumes and parasols. The chairman pounds the desk in vain and it is four minutes before there is order.
- Colorado—Gresham 3, Harrison 2, Allison 1.
- Connecticut—Hawley 12.
- Delaware—Harrison 6.
- Florida—Harrison 1, Tittler 3, Sherman 4.
- Georgia—Gresham 1, Harrison 2, Sherman 19, Lincoln 1.
- Illinois—Gresham 43.
- Indiana—Harrison 29, Gresham 1.
- Iowa—Allison 28.

AUGUST ELECTION, 1888.

The Brown County Democrat thinks the Democrats have a chance to carry Ohio with Cleveland and Thurman as leaders. Well, we have carried the "Buckeye State," and we may do it again.

When the Democrats took charge of the pension office they found 40,000 applications "hanging fire." These have all been disposed of, together with about 100,000 new applications. The Democratic Pension Commissioner has made a splendid record.

SENATOR "Johnny Jumpup" Ingalls admits that if the Republicans do not win at the November election it will be end of the party, "which makes it singularly felicitous," remarks the Enquirer, "that General Fremont should be present at Chicago—the first Republican candidate can shake hands with the last."

"It makes one laugh," says the Cincinnati Enquirer, "to see the Republican platform 'pledge' the party to get rid of Mormonism. It first made that pledge in the Philadelphia platform of 1856, when Fremont was nominated, and has repeated it in all the eight succeeding platforms. It is a party of great promises."

It's the easiest thing in the world to account for the vile and malignant attacks upon Cleveland by Republicans. They know his popularity defeated them four years ago and they realize that their chances of defeating him this year are very slim. He has dealt their party a death blow, and they know it and hate him for it. But what cares he for all their malignity. The people are on his side.

The Republicans in their platform "demand a reduction of letter postage to one cent." This is demanding something the Democrats are already working to secure. Senator Beck introduced a bill to that effect some months ago and it is now pending. This is real mean in the Republicans trying to steal the Democrats' "munitions of war," and we are not going to submit to any such business.

The New York Star says scratch a Republican favorite and you will find a monopoly pet. John M. Thurston, temporary chairman of the Chicago Convention, is the general attorney of the Union Pacific Railroad Company and the leader of the monopoly forces in the State of Nebraska. He was defeated for the United States Senatorship by the energetic opposition of the anti-monopolists and damaging attacks made on him by the Omaha Bee.

The following from the Philadelphia Ledger is well worth repeating. Speaking of Cleveland's administration, the Ledger says: "It has been free from official or personal scandals; has been honest and clean. There has been no star route robberies; no navy jobberies; no profligate waste by United States Marshals; no treasury combinations or speculations; no corrupt operations in or through the land office. No American at home or abroad has had occasion to drop his eyes in shame because of any such things under Mr. Cleveland's administration. On the contrary, there has been a resolute effort to promote honest government, to increase efficiency, and to lessen expenses."

It begins to look like the National contest next fall will be a fight between Democracy and monopoly.

Mrs. JOHN KANE, Sr., who has been seriously ill for the past few days, was some better this morning.

SERVICES at the usual hours to-morrow, both morning and evening, at the First Presbyterian Church. Communion in the morning, the pastor assisted by Rev. John Barbour. "Historical Lecture" in the evening by the pastor.

DEPUTY MARSHAL DAWSON will return to-night from Cincinnati with John Jones, who is in custody on a charge of stealing tobacco plants. The alleged offense was committed near Springdale some days ago. Mr. Dawson found his man several miles below Cincinnati. The examining trial will be held Monday morning before Squire Grant.

HUNTINGTON is preparing to extend the Kentucky & South Atlantic Railroad—better known as the Mt. Sterling coal road—to Jackson, Breathitt County, and West Liberty, Morgan County. A proposition asking $100,000 from Breathitt has been submitted to the voters of that county. The Mt. Sterling Gazette says: "The people are taking a sensible view of this proposition and will doubtless vote for the amount submitted with little opposition. Two years from the day of the voting of this subscription the road will be completed. The charter requires it, and a failure to have it constructed, with cars running, cancels the subscription. In two years Breathitt will be a rich county, and many of her citizens will have their hundreds of thousands."

Inherited Diseases.

In the realm of disease the facts of inheritance are most numerous and are daily accumulating. Here, also, they become terrible, fearful and overwhelming. No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease. It meets the physician on his daily rounds, paralyzing his art and filling him with dismay. The legend of the ancient Greeks pictures the Furies as pursuing families from generation to generation, rendering them desolate. The Furies still ply their work of terror and death, but they are not now clothed in the garb of superstition, but appear in the more intelligible but no less awful form of hereditary disease. Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Instances of hereditary disease abound. Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, that fearful destroyer of families, of cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—affecting so powerfully the happiness of individuals and families and the collective welfare of the nation—are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing

SPECIAL CUT-PRICE SALE, FOR CASH, OF

Boots and Shoes.

Owing to the extremely backward season, I find that my Summer stock of Boots and Shoes is much larger than we care to have it, and have determined to reduce it, and to accomplish this end we will offer special inducements to cash buyers for the next sixty days. The stock consists of the very best brands of seasonable goods, in Ladies', Misses' and Children's fine, medium and low-priced goods, and the best and cheapest line of Men's and Boys' wear ever offered to the trade. This is no catch-penny business, but a genuine cut-price sale. The price on every pair of Shoes in the stock will be reduced. Don't fail to embrace this rare opportunity to buy good, honest Boots and Shoes at less money than they were ever offered in the history of the Maysville Shoe trade. Respectfully,

The United Press.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The operators engaged in sending over the country the detail history of the convention were situated outside the auditorium about one hundred and fifty feet from the stenographers' desks.

SENDING CONVENTION DISPATCHES.

Connecting the two were pneumatic tubes through which the reporters' copy was drawn by the suction of an air pump worked by turning a crank, as shown in the engraving. Each convention is an improvement on the previous ones in the handling of the dispatches, and this one was no exception.

Fighting for Tickets.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The struggle for tickets is still fierce, and last night Mr. Clarkson, of the National committee, found it necessary to knock down the sergeant-at-arms, Gen. Fitzsimmons, because the latter called him a liar in a dispute over tickets. Mr. Clarkson was right and is sustained by public opinion. A good looking darky was selling tickets for the convention at $10 apiece in the Ohio club headquarters. He did a thriving business, and was congratulated on his success.
"Oh," he said, "I'm selling them on commission. You see, a number of the Iowa boys came to town without much money, and some of them haven't got enough to get home with. They got tickets for the convention and now they want to sell them and raise enough stuff to get out of town with. They are sharp fellows. They don't want to sell them themselves, and so they give me a dollar apiece for taking care of them."

State board of health is counting the animalcule in a drop of Ohio river beverage. What is the world coming to, anyway? Bacteria in the water, snakes in the whisky, beer full of microbes, choleric and frisky; tyrotoxicon in milk, air full of "pizen"—there's not a blessing in this world that has not got some flies on.
